From Fr. Rickert…

As you will see in the note immediately below, I'm changing the schedule for the talks that I have been doing between the Masses. I hope that this will work better overall for people. I started doing these talks because I do have a duty to provide religious education in some form.

Which leads me to the question: What does religious education look like for an adult? It is easy to fall into the trap, as an adult, of thinking that we had all of the catechism classes we needed by the time we finished high school. Maybe some of you went to a Catholic college that required some courses in theology or the Bible. But even if so, education is a lifelong endeavor.

This has always been the case, but I would say it is even more urgent in the world today due to at least three factors: one, the instability and upheaval in the world and in the Church; two, the rise and virulence of movements hostile to the Church and to Christianity in general; and three, the fearful and seemingly out-of-control trajectory of technology such as AI. There are moral questions we have to face now that previous generations have not had to face. There are questions of apologetics we now need to know how to address, whereas in earlier generations we could at least take the acceptance of Christianity for granted.

Getting back to my question: What does religious education look like for an adult? I believe it is best to have a variety of ways of continuing to learn. Reading, of course, but not reading only. Someone may be very well read but may become too attached to his own opinions since the books he is reading, and the books he is not reading, cannot speak out loud to him. Doctrinally sound videos from reliable sources are also a resource, but the same reservation I have about reading also applies to them. Live instruction has the advantage that people can ask questions, bring up points, etc. Indeed, Our Lord Himself commands His Apostles to preach to every creature, not to maintain their blogs or podcasts.

Sunday Educational Talk Schedule Change

The Sunday educational talks will now be on the first Sunday of the month. So, the next talk will be on Dec. 6. Please do come!

Thanksgiving Day Mass Schedule

Masses on Thanksgiving Day will be at 7:00 am and 9:00 am. There will not be a 12:10 pm Mass.

Last Day to Submit Photos

If you were not able to have your picture taken, you have one last chance to be included in the parish directory… You may submit a family photo to stroseqcy@parish.dio.org The higher the resolution the better. Include names of all family members. Children should be listed in birth order. Pictures must be submitted by November 16. Please cover the $15 cost that we incur if you submit your own photo. Thanks.

Business Directory

St. Rose would like to post a business directory on the bulletin boards of our church so that parishioners can support their fellow parishioners. Parishioners are invited to send their busi-ness card to the parish office for Fr. Rickert's approval. There is no fee for this. The purpose of this is to provide information, and not to make any recommendations as such, of course.

Holy Hour for Priests

There will be an hour of Adoration for priests followed by benediction at St Anthony Church, 2223 St. Anthony Rd., Quincy on November 15, from 3:00 to 4:00 pm. All are invited to come and pray for our priests.
